- Uniforms are required for students in prekindergarten through grade eight. Some schools have adopted specific colors for their uniform. Some high schools require students to wear a uniform. Check with your child's school about more specific color requirements.
- A parent or guardian may request, in writing, an exemption to the uniform policy for religious or philosophical reasons.
- Elementary and middle school principals may designate up to one day a week as a "no uniform" day.
- Not allowed under the uniform policy: Blue jeans, low-cut or low-rise pants, sagging slacks or pants, clothing with manufacturers' trademarks larger than one inch, clothing with non-DISD logos and insignias such as those of professional sports teams.
